

INDEX

Book Reviews

18, 26, 30, 45–48, 62, 75–80, 98, 111–112, 126, 132, 137, 143–147

Botany

The Backhouse Trichomanes, 49–50; James Backhouse Jnr (1825–1890) and the Killarney Fern, 50–52

Bryology

Y.N.U. Bryological Section: annual report 1990–1991, 41–43

Conchology

Limax maculatus, a slug new to Yorkshire, 131–132

Ecology

Loss of aquatic vegetation in a Wolds Winterbourne during perennial dryness, 127–131

Entomology

Aculeate wasps and bees of Skipwith Common and a comparison of Skipwith Common with Allerthorpe and Strensall Commons, 19–25; Drosophila fenestrarum from Leeds, a new record for northern England, with notes on larval feeding sites, 27–30; Entomological reports for 1987–1989 (Coleoptera), 69–71; Entomological reports for 1990–1991 (Coleoptera), 71–75

Lichenology

Progress in the study of the Yorkshire lichen flora, 138

Mammalia

Bats and their roosts in Cleveland and north east Yorkshire, 99–108; Deer drowning in canals, 133–137

Obituaries

William Arthur Sledge, 43–45; Brian Shaw Pashby, 139–141; Willis George Bramley, 141–143

Ornithology

Common bird census on Thorne Moors National Nature Reserve, 5–18; Ecology of Long-eared Owls wintering in south west Yorkshire, 53–62; Common Sandpiper population of the Ladybower Reservoir Complex, 63–68; The Humber Wildfowl Refuge: an experiment in wildfowl conservation, 81–98; Historical notes on the Starling in Yorkshire, 109–111; F. O. Morris's List of Yorkshire Birds, 113–125

Yorkshire Naturalists' Union

Archives of the Yorkshire Naturalists' Union, 31–40; Presidential address, 81–98